A Message From Staff

This week is Anti-Bullying week and we were delighted to welcome Cambridge United in assembly to share this year's theme of reaching out. The anti-bullying alliance defines bullying as the repetitive, intentional hurting of one person or group by another person or group, where the relationship involves an imbalance of power. It can happen face to face or online. Bullying never has been and is never acceptable, as our key value nurturing echoes. We are teaching our children to be kind and considerate young people and we received a lovely email from the Royal British Legion complimenting our children on their fantastic behaviour:-

"...We are still marvelling at your students work, in fact we became so engrossed in the artwork, I feel sure we could see more details than the various artists intended, in fact that is the true inspiration of art, allowing others to interpret as their minds allow.

On arriving in the classroom and being given permission to enter whilst a class was in progress, allowed us to witness a polite attentive group, of young people interested in learning, the collective poem on the wall caught us by surprise, it was uncluttered, conveying a clear, to the point, pertinent message.

Young people seeing us walking along, un-asked holding doors open for us, was a treat in itself.

Keep up the excellent work."

We are incredibly proud of our kind and respectful community.
